During my childhood, Uncle Alex was the happiest man I knew. He had kind woords for everyone and always made us smile. He caled me his favorite kiddo and had a new riddle to ask me every time I saw him. He'd only give me two gueses, and if I got it right, he'd give me a quarter.

Uncle Alex was a chimney sweep. He'd take me up on the rooftops with him. Climing up and down chimnies was hard work, but Uncle Alex always whistled cheerful melodys as he worked. I often wonderd what he was so happy about.

While Uncle Alex cleaned the chimneys, I exploerd the rooftops. The view of the city was incredible, and if I squinted, I swear I could see my budyes playing on the neighborhood baseball field. And there I was – worllds away on the rooftops with Uncle Alex. Those were some of my greatest memories!
